“I AM COOL AND SO ARE YOU”

This is an active game for children to do, (adults like it to), especially as a warm-up for acting!

A little like musical chairs.

Everyone sits in a circle. There should be one fewer chairs than people.

One person starts standing in the middle and says something that is true for them. Here are some ideas:

I am cool and so are you if....you love pizza!

OR

I am cool and so are you if..you listen to Taylor Swift

OR

I am cool and so are you if..you are wearing red today!

Everyone who agrees/fits the description must jump up and move to a different chair-just not the one right next to them.

Person who is "It" is also trying to find a chair to sit in.

Whoever is left standing when everyone is seated now becomes "It." and picks a new thing to say that is true for them.

How many things about yourself can you come up with that you know other people will relate to. Also you can think of some unusual things like....

“I am cool and so are you if you have ever swum with a dolphin”

Remember what you say has to be TRUE!
